This Wonderful Age

Recently within the short space of one week two exploration parties crossed the North Pole without mishap and in comparative comfort, thus realizing what has been the ambition of daring and adventurous men for centuries. Their achievements were rendered possible by the use of the air routes instead of by ship through the icebound waters of the Arctic seas.

Daily communication is maintained between London and Paris by regular ships carrying passengers and freight, the time schedules being as regular as those of the best managed railways, and a few weeks ago the trip from London to Paris was made in ninety minutes by an airplane carrying a score of passengers and several tons of express freight.

Throughout large sections of the United States mail is now transported by airplanes with the result that important letters are delivered thousands of miles away within a few hours of mailing whereas formerly days were necessary for their despatch. Regular mail services by air are now established and maintained right across the continent, and the number of such routes is increasing every year.

Within the short space of one generation the horse and buggy has been superseded by the automobile with its small, compact internal combustion gasoline engine, as a means of conveyance on our highways, and a day's journey of a few years ago is now only a matter of hours, or even minutes, and hundreds of thousands of people who never dreamed of keeping a horse and buggy now have their horseless carriages.

When the electric telegraph, the telephone, and finally the trans-Atlantic cable came into operation most people felt that the last word in rapid communication had been written, and now almost overnight has come the marvelous development of radio whereby the most remote and inaccessible places in the world can be kept in constant touch with centres of population and activity. The successful flights over the North Pole were known to the world within a few hours. No longer are ships at sea isolated between ports, and one in distress can call others to its assistance just as a sick person in a city can summon his doctor by telephone.

Photographs of scenes in connection with the great British strike were printed in New York papers the following day, transmitted across the Atlantic by radio, and even on these Western papers these pictures were reproduced within three or four days whereas last year such pictures would not have been available here for two weeks or more.

In another way time and distance and cost of operation are being reduced in the West through the introduction of oil-electric cars on our steam railways, thereby also eliminating the smoke and other discomforts of travel.

For centuries the enormous powers in our great rivers, cataraacts and falls have been pure waste because unused. Now this cheapest of all known sources of power is being harnessed the world over and placed at man's disposal, with the result that not in cities alone but in the rural home the benefits of electric light, power and heat are available, while all industry has entered upon a new era of expansion.

Within the memory of people still living the tallow candle has given way before the kerosene lamp, and the lamp has been replaced first by the carbon electric light and now by the cheaper, more efficient tungsten lamp. The finest lectures, the best music, the current news of the day is carried by radio into the humblest and most isolated home, and it does not require much imagination to foresee that at no distant date people everywhere will be able to witness as well as hear these far distant occurrences.

Julia Verne's flights of fancy in "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" and "Around the World in Eighty Days" are today accepted facts and almost every day being lived.

Pessimists there still are who insist that the world is becoming worse and not better, that mankind is headed for destruction, that with increase of population he would not be capable of producing enough food to sustain life, that with our prodigious use of fuel these resources will become exhausted and the race will freeze to death, and so on and so forth. Such croakers there always have been, and probably always will be, but their dire predictions always fail to be realized. Man has ever been able to solve the problems confronting him. Necessity has ever been the mother of invention, and at no time in the history of the race has inventive genius been more fertile in practical ideas, nor has science been so consistently employed to achieve important and lasting results.

Predicts Bumper Crop

May Surpass Banner Years in West
Says Eastern Man

Returning from a tour of the western provinces Thomas Bradshaw, vice-president and general manager of the Massey-Harris Company, prophesied that 1926 would see a bumper crop which would rival, if not surpass, the banner years of the past. Not since 1915, he declared, had he seen the wheat crops so well advanced, the farmers in such a flourishing condition and the general tone of the west so optimistic.

The English town of Bradford has an official fairy story teller, who gathers the children about her and relates to them the tales of dwarfs and fairies and to have entertained the young in all parts of the world for hundreds of years. Since Mrs. Mary Bradford, the official story teller, began her work, 12,596 children have sat at her feet and listened to the stories.

Those Who Can Afford Fad Cultivate Perpetual Smile

Coal Waste Is Valuable

Can Be Used For Perfumes and Other By-products Say Scientists

Fuel conservation was discussed as a vital problem by practical men attending the eighteenth annual meeting of the International Railway Fuel Association at Chicago.

Scientists are turning to the aid of the railroads in this matter, the members were told in an open forum meeting on engineering factors. The slack waste in coal is soon to be taken care of by chemical processes and the day is not far off when that waste will be turned into oil, gas, perfumes and other valuable by-products, it was predicted.

Applies For Patent On New Aeroplane

Military Aviator Claims His Invention Will Not Crash

Boblat, a former military aviator, has applied for a patent on an aeroplane which will not crash. The invention is based on the fact that 90 per cent of all aeroplanes crash to earth because of the invention consists of a series of counter-weights which, in the event of a perpendicular descent, are caused to slide to the rear of the plane, thereby re-establishing its balance, aided by an auxiliary rudder.

Tighten Border Defences

Rum Running and Smuggling to Be Curbed at Border

Border defences against rum running and other smuggling of contraband goods has been so lightened during the last year or so that the spring rush is not the success it formerly was. Promiscuous crossing of the border with cargoes of liquor has been forced to give way to carefully organized smuggling, largely owing to the fact that customs and immigration forces are co-operating in an effort to dam the flow of Canadian liquor into the United States.

Question Of International Law

If Empire Is At War Every Part Is Automatically Involved

The Sydney Evening News editorially states: "Mr. Woodsworth, a Labor member for Winnipeg, who raised the question that Canada should not become involved in empire wars, without deciding the questions at issue for herself, overlooked the fact that by international law when the empire is at war every part of it becomes automatically involved. It is a partnership, and any partner can involve the others. The extent to which any Dominion participates is not a matter of compulsion, but of popular will. If Great Britain embarked upon a manifestly unjust war, the response of the dominions would be feeble than if the issue were one which had a higher moral varrant. It is true that both Britain and the dominions might be honestly mistaken in the great point is that in the ultimate analysis, the basis of the empire is the assent of its peoples founded on their belief in its beneficence and its necessity as a custodian of world power."

Self-Poisoning Increasingly Common

Modern Living Habits Promote Self-Poisoning—Thousands are Victims

Tourists In Increasing Numbers Now Coming To Western Canada Are Offered Many Attractions

The mental picture of the Canadian west is a vision splendid. Were an onlooker to view the scene from above Winnipeg, the eastern gateway of the prairie, and have his range of vision sufficiently extended, he would see spread out to the westward a vast, gently rolling, fertile plain, gradually rising to the foothills of the Rocky Mountains, over nine hundred miles away. On the right, the northern edge of the prairie merges into a transition zone of mixed prairie and woodland, commonly called the park belt, and north of this, stretching away indefinitely, is a belt of forest land, interspersed with lakes and waterways. In the extreme southwestern corner, near the Rockies, appears a stretch of ranching country. Fed by the melting snows and glaciers of the Rocky Mountains, the majestic Saskatchewan drains the whole plain and pours its way waters into the inland sea of Lake Winnipeg to be thence discharged through the Nelson River into Hudson Bay. Through the prairie belt extend three transcontinental railway lines with innumerable branch lines crisscrossing in every direction, and stretching out into the north country.

The most striking feature of the landscape viewed from above is the vast checkerboard effect produced by the system of surveys which divides the whole country into blocks one mile square, by roadways running due east-west and north-south. In these provinces the Dominion of Canada has the greatest continuous area in the world laid out in astronomically based subdivisions.

Dealing with the territory by and large, the prairie is the great wheat producer; the prairies and foothills contain about 15 per cent. of the world's coal reserves; the southwest corner is the ranching country; the forest belt north of the park lands is the chief seat of the lumbering industry, and the home of the fur-bearing; the Laurentian range across the north-east is now the scene of metalliferous mining development; and from the great rivers and lakes come the white fish and sturgeon which supply the tables of half the continent.

The prairies, which in fifty years have advanced from A Great Lone Land to be the empire's granary, wherein the production of all kinds of grain has attained to the total of almost one thousand million bushels per year, are naturally the centre of interest. In this area which has a population of over two millions are located the capitals of the three provinces and other centres of distribution and manufacturing, the rapid rise of which has been the romance of the past twenty-five years.

The attention of the onlooker is drawn to the all-embracing road system, not by a sight of the roads themselves, for they are, for the most part, so hidden by the tall verdure that the whole country appears to be an unbroken wasteland, but because of the constant passing to and fro across the landscape of heavily laden farm wagons and of a countless number of motor vehicles of every description. Automobiles are indeed everywhere, for it is not hard to say that the west appears to have been created for the automobile and the automobile invented for the west. The advantages of this checkerboard road system, which has done so much to assist in the rapid development of the country, are at once appreciated by the visitor, for a glance at a map, or a short run along any highway shows him that in whatever direction he desires to travel he can do so as readily as he can take his way about the streets of his own home town. He sees that if he proceeds, say west, he will within a mile come to a road running north and south, and that travelling on this road in either direction for a mile he will reach another crossroad parallel to the first. He need not ask questions. He simply starts his car, makes the necessary turnings and reaches his destination. It is almost impossible to lose oneself.

The tourist like before him one of the most fascinating lands imaginable. Whether he desires to travel by train or steamboat, automobile or canoe, whether his tastes incline to palatial hotels, bungalow camps, or tents, he will find ample satisfaction for every wish. Hunting, fishing and visiting mining camps are all easily compassed; should he be a canoeist, he can drop his craft into the Saskatchewan or the Assiniboine and paddle over old fur-trader routes even to Hudson Bay; or if he seeks a new thrill he can travel in commodious modern steamers down the Mackenzie River system to the land of the midnight sun and the Arctic Ocean.

Where every section has its tourist attractions it is possible to mention only a few. In the east, there are those about the three big lakes, Winnipeg, Manitoba and Winnipegosis; in the north is the rugged forest country, full of big lakes and rivers, the Meccas of the hunter and fisherman; the Saskatchewan valley is shared by all the provinces; the famous Qu'Appelle valley is in the centre; and along the western edge are the Rocky Mountains and foothills. On this slope of the Rockies are the largest of Canada's national parks, Jasper Park in the north, Banff Park in the centre, and Waterton Lakes Park in the extreme south. All these recreation centres have their appeal and not least these mighty mountains, with their forest-laced valleys, their upland gardens, their glaciers and snow fields, and their uncounted peaks, many of whose summits have never yet been scaled by man and which invite conquest by the energetic and the adventurous.

Married men are nearly all great lovers of excursions.

Advantages Of Sweet Clover

Seventeen Reasons Showing the Advantages of This Crop

(By Jas. D. McGregor, Glenora, Saskatchewan)

1. Sweet clover will grow on practically all soils in Western Canada.
2. Is more easily started than alfalfa or any other clover.
3. Makes good pastures and hay.
4. All kinds of stock soon learn to like it.
5. Seeds heavily in all sections, and grows easily and.
6. Feeding value equal to alfalfa, better for pasture.
7. Starts early in spring, grows all summer and in late fall.
8. Does not hurt cattle and sheep like alfalfa.
9. A biennial legume—its well in rotation.
10. Roots are soft, easily inoculated, decay rapidly.
11. As green manure will add more plant food than any other crop.
12. Will smother out nearly all kinds of weeds.
13. Will prepare heavy wet alkali land for other crops.
14. An excellent bee pasture, making white honey.
15. Will grow where other clovers and alfalfa will not: (a) On low, wet, alkali land. (b) On dry, stony, gumbo soils.
16. Alfalfa starts more easily than sweet clover, as the sweet clover roots are softer and more easily inoculated.
17. Sweet clover is no longer an experiment. Grow it, use it. It is one of God's choicest gifts to man.

Saskatchewan Butter

Interest in Dairying Increasing With Farmers Throughout the Province

With interest in dairying increasing among farmers all over Saskatchewan, creamery butter production in the province during April totaled over 1,050,000 pounds. This is an increase of 325,487 pounds, or a little better than 45 per cent. over the output a year ago.

In the first four months of this year production totaled 3,418,000 pounds, or an increase of 28.9 per cent. over the output during the corresponding period last year.

Four new creameries have been opened in the province this year and five additional plants are now under way.

Insects Wait For Weather

Scientists Say Moth Can Postpone Birthday For Years

Observations made by a British scientist have led to the belief that if the weather is bad the small egg moth can postpone its own birthday for days, months or years. The cocoon of this type is ordinarily due to open in February but if the weather is inclement the birth is usually postponed sometimes for twelve months. Moths have been known to emerge successfully after being imprisoned eleven years.

Faith In The Future Of Canada Supported By A Reference To Experience Of The United States

Catworms In The Garden

Poisoned Bran Is Recommended As A Means of Control

Catworms rank among the worst insect pests of garden and field crops. They are general feeders, attacking all kinds of garden plants, particularly when they are young and succulent in the early part of the season. As a rule, they cease to be troublesome after the end of June. A bulletin on catworms and their control, distributed free by the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, gives detailed information on this pest and describes the means of control. Poisoned bran is the best remedy for catworms, and it should be applied as soon as their presence is indicated. For small gardens one quart of bran, one teaspoonful of Paris green, and one tablespoonful of molasses, with sufficient water to moisten the mixture, is sufficient. When large quantities are needed use 20 pounds of bran, 1/2 pound Paris green, 1 quart of molasses and 2 to 3 gallons of water. Mix the bran and Paris green thoroughly while dry, dissolve the molasses in the water and pour it on the mixture, stirring well.

The catworms hide in the soil during the day and come out to feed at night, therefore, the mixture should be applied immediately after sundown to get the best results. In gardens or fields containing rows of vegetables, it should be scattered thinly along the rows on either side. Flowering plants may be protected by placing a small quantity of the poisoned bran around, but not touching each plant.

Many Prizes For Alberta Corn Show

Will Be Held This Year At Medicine Hat

The provincial corn show for Alberta is to be held this year at Medicine Hat under the auspices of the Alberta Corn Growers' Association. The directors are working out a prize list which will include classes for the following types of corn—yellow and white flint, yellow and white dent, northwestern dent, sweet corn and popcorn. There will also be classes for shewers. In addition to cash prizes the directors hope to be able to secure several trophies as championship awards.

Vancouver Seeds In England

When many of the gardens in England come into bloom this year, millions of flowers from Canadian seeds will bloom among the plants of the Old Land; for England is turning to the warm climate and rich soil of Vancouver Island for its supply of choice seeds.

It is always interesting to read the views of publicists in other countries on economic conditions in our own country, and particularly when they are of an optimistic and encouraging character. It is refreshing, therefore, to read in a United States contemporary, a statement of faith in the future of Canada, supported by reference to experience which the United States itself underwent before it reached its present progressive and happy economical condition.

A member of the Canadian Parliament, writes the Detroit News, states that "Canada is a rival of the United States," repeating him as saying: "We are paying tribute to the United States to the extent of $250,000,000 every year, $200,000,000 of which we pay in imports and $50,000,000 on money borrowed, on which the News comments editorially as follows:

"If that constitutes vassalage, then the United States was the vassal of the rest of the world, chiefly Europe, for almost 100 years; for it was not until 1880 that our exports began regularly to exceed our imports in value, and it was considerably after that date that we ceased to pay Europe huge dividends on borrowed capital."

"If Canada is spending $200,000,000 a year for American goods, it is a sign that somehow or other she is making the money to pay for them. She is farming, manufacturing, exporting, creating wealth; and part of this wealth she exchanges for American products. Why does she buy these goods? Because she is not self-sufficient. Would she gain by making these goods for herself? Not unless she could make them more cheaply than she can buy them."

"If Canada is spending $150,000,000 a year for money borrowed from the United States, she is pursuing the same course we followed while we had immense undeveloped resources and small accumulations of capital. We borrowed money where we could get it, and paid high interest on it, but we put that money to very good use. If Canada is doing the same with the capital she has borrowed from the United States, she is following a successful example. She should be thankful, for by putting that money to productive work she will one day emerge from the state of 'vassalage' that seems to worry the worthy member of parliament."

"One has but to cast an eye over the map of Canada, a vast territory with extraordinary possibilities, and think of what the people of the United States did to the 'Great American Desert,' to see that any Canadian who is pessimistic about his country is well, to say the best, he is short of vision."

Sunflowers For Silage

The Effect of Sunflowers on the Following Crop

Sunflowers have gained considerable promise as a silage crop during the last few years, owing largely to their hardiness which allows them a longer growing season than corn and makes them a more certain crop. They require less moisture than corn and make a good substitute for it in districts in which the summer season is comparatively short, the nights cool and the preceding season inclement. There has been some doubt, however, as to the effect of sunflowers on the succeeding crop, as little was known of their plant food requirements. In order to determine their effect on the following crop an experiment was conducted at the Western Saskatchewan experimental station. Corn and turnips were used for comparison, in the two years of the experiment, wheat and barley, following turnips, showed somewhat higher yields than when they followed sunflowers. The difference was considerably more striking when corn was used, 19.4 bushels of wheat being produced following that crop compared with 11.3 bushels following sunflowers. As the experiment has lasted only two years, no definite conclusion can be drawn, but it would seem that sunflowers are more exhausting to the soil than either corn or roots.

A Canadian Ambassador
American Paper Thinks We Should Have a Representative in U. S.
It is years since it was arranged that Canada should have an ambassador to the United States. The Canadian Government has announced at different times that the appointment was upon the point of making. It has been asserted by friends of that government that the ambassadorship would be assigned so soon as the right Canadian could be had. Either the right Canadian is a "white blackbird" or "a shrinking violet," for there are 9,000,000 Canadians and among them there must be some man capable enough and not too modest to serve Canada at Washington.
As a matter of business alone the Dominion needs an American ambassador. Canada is too old and great, its interests too numerous and important, for the British ambassador to represent it indirectly, when Albania, Egypt and Haiti have representatives of their own in the United States. No British ambassador can handle Canada's business at Washington as advantageously to Canada as could a representative of the Ottawa government—Chicago Journal.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MAY 30
JACOB AT BETHEL

Golden Text: I am with thee, and will keep thee whithersoever thou goest. Genesis 28:15.
Lesson: Genesis, Chapters 27, 28.
Devotional Reading: Psalm 121.

Explanations and Comments
Jacob's Dream. At Bethel, verses 10-15—Jacob was sleeping from exhaustion; see The Historical Background. He left Heershebe and started toward Haran. Quite by accident, as it would seem from the expression "He lighted upon a certain place," he came to the hill near Bethel, where he had vision of God.

"God pity the boy who leaves home and does not carry with him some kind of pointing finger that shows the way to God, some memories, some imaginations that lead him to the place where God may be seen" (Ralph Connor). Jacob needed something for a pillow and there was nothing better at hand than the stones about him. He took one of them and put it under his head as he lay down to sleep. Such a practice is common in Africa at the present time. When Bishop Taylor returned to this country he had no use for soft pillows, and more than once substituted a headrest of books.

The sun hung low in the sky as Jacob approached Bethel, and the last thing before falling asleep, he had gazed upon the rocks and stones so abundantly strewn about him, and in his dream they naturally shaped themselves into a ladder, or flight of stone steps. (In Hebrew and also in Arabic the word here translated "ladder" means also "staircase.")

"The Spirit of God always conveyed his teaching to his servants in language borrowed from their surroundings." John's records of heaven are full of reminiscences of the Egean, which sometimes murmured around the cliffs of Gail, complete rolled up like glass bathed in fire, and at other times broke open in their yearly foam. David's Psalms make constant reference to the "wild hill-country of Judea," in which so many of them were composed" (Dr. B. F. Meyer).

Handshaking Is Hard Work
Prince of Wales Not Only One to be Incapacitated by Custom
The decision to abandon the White House custom of indiscriminate handshaking was bound to be made sooner or later, for it had become a menace to the health of both the president and his wife. At the first reception after the war President Harding shook 4,500 hands at the rate of 30 per minute. President Wilson wished he could get a glove with steel fingers. The wife of President Cleveland found her right hand getting larger than her left as the result of much democratic salutation, and took violin lessons to reduce the disparity. Mrs. Harrison, after the first experience, evaded the ordeal by holding a fan in one hand and a bouquet in the other. MAJORITY OF 13 FOR GOVERNMENT ON BUDGET VOTE

Ottawa.—After over a month of debate ending in an all-night sitting, the house defeated the Conservative amendment to the budget by a majority of 13. The vote stood: Against 121, for 108.

An unusual feature of the division was that neither Premier King nor Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Opposition leader, cast a vote.

Mr. Meighen was absent through illness. Mr. King was paired with Mr. Meighen.

There were no party switches. Liberals present voted solidly against the amendment. Conservatives voted solidly for it. Progressives, Independents, and Labor voted with the government.

Announcement of the result was greeted with loud Liberal cheers.

The house then again divided on the main budget motion.

Will Explore Ungava Territory

Expedition Will Make the Trip in Three Aeroplanes

Quebec.—What is considered the most important expedition that has ever been sent out by the Provincial Government will leave Seven Islands in June next, by aeroplane, for a long exploration trip in the vast territory of Ungava. The expedition will be under the direction of Henri Belanger, well known aviator, who has several similar undertakings to his credit already, and will comprise about fifty men and be divided into three parties, with Mr. Belanger, Paul Savard and Arlen Chailfleur as the respective leaders.

The whole exploration will be accomplished in three aeroplanes. The principal aims of the expedition are the preparation of a detailed report on McLean's Fall, considered the largest falls in Canada, 800 feet in height and three-quarters of a mile wide. More than 1,000 miles will be covered by the explorers during the four months they expect to be absent.

Accepts Aid From Soviets

Money Refused By Trades' Unions Goes to British Miners

Moscow.—The Soviet news agency announces that A. J. Cook, secretary of the British Miners' Federation, "has accepted with deepest thanks" the money given by the Soviet miners to aid the strikers in the British mines.

The news agency adds that Mr. Cook has requested that the money be transferred immediately to England, "as the miners' need is very great."

Previous dispatches from Russia announced that the sum collected for the British miners in Soviet Russia amounted to about $1,000,000. The money was offered to the British Trades Union Congress during the recent general strike, but was declined.

Paris.—The three Englishmen who were arrested here last December on charges of espionage, have been given prison sentences in Criminal Court. The court found they had endeavored to obtain secret documents concerning French maritime and aviation stations.

At the time of their arrest it was charged that the three men were former British officers in the intelligence service of Great Britain. The British foreign office, however, denied all knowledge of the men's activities.

India's Only Woman Ruler Abdicates Throne

British Government Granted Request For Only Son to Succeed Her

London.—India's only woman ruler, Her Highness the Begum of Bhopal, has abdicated her throne in favor of her son, Nawab Zada Hamidulla. For a long time she had contended for the Islamic right to name her successor under ordinary procedure should have been the son of her deceased eldest son, Nawab Nasrulla Khan. The British government finally acceded to her desires.

The abdication of the Begum brings to an end a period of 80 years of female rule in the little state of Central India of 6,902 square miles, with a population of about 700,000. She had ruled Bhopal for a quarter of a century with vigor and statesmanship. Although now 68 years old, she still is mentally and physically vigorous. Nevertheless, she long had wished to see her only son established as her successor before her faculties failed.

Nawab Zada Hamidulla is now 31 years old. He had been carefully trained in statesmanship under his mother's direction. He was on the staff of the Prince of Wales during the Prince's visit to India and also served in the war. He has a splendid reputation.

Having succeeded in her efforts, it is said she retires happily from the cares of the government.

Influence Will Not Help

Home Bank Depositors Will Be All Treated Alike

Ottawa.—"Influence or no influence has no bearing on this matter," said Premier W. L. M. King in the House of Commons regarding the payment of Home Bank depositors. "For Mr. McGillivray, Conservative, Muskoka, had quoted a newspaper article which said that some depositors found it difficult to obtain the promised 35 per cent. payment because they lacked influence."

The prime minister said influence had nothing to do with it. He understood that a group of depositors had held a meeting, discussed their position and decided to come to Ottawa in the form of a delegation to make their representations to the government. When they come, said Mr. King, they would be received like any other delegation and their claim would be given every consideration.

Report Says Boy-Ed Banned From States

State Department Requested His Recall to Germany During War

Berlin.—Captain Karl Boy-Ed is said to have been refused a visa to enter the United States.

The passport bureau of the state department is declared to have regarded the time too short since his war activities when naval attaché of the German embassy at Washington, to permit him to re-enter the country.

He was recalled by Germany at the request of the state department in 1915 because of his military and naval activities.

Storms Have Ruined French Fruit Crop

Unlucky Weather Improves Soon Cereals Are Also Threatened

Paris.—Fruit crops all over France have been ruined by snow, rain, hail and cold. While cereals are threatened, if the improvement promised by the weather forecaster does not materialize quickly.

Many valleys which suffered badly at the beginning of the year from floods again are menaced by rising waters, notably the Upper Marne, the Rhone and the Durance.

Neighborhoods in Balkans

Paris.—General Paraskevas, the new Greek premier, wishes to practice a policy of neighborhood in the Balkans, particularly with Yugoslavia, he told the French press.

REDUCTION OF ARMAMENTS IS DIFFICULT TASK

Geneva.—Nations will fear to disarm, because other nations' disarmament would be potentially stronger, can in the long run conquer them—that is the supreme stumbling block to disarmament which loomed at the opening session of the preparatory commission. France mentioned it, Belgium, overwhelmed in the Great War, emphasized it, and Premier Mussolini's spokesman even declared: "If you do not take account of every kind of potential military strength, in a country, then you show a desire to weaken a weak state and strengthen a strong one."

Vicentini Cecil frankly declared that disarmament is not a matter of mere possession of mandated territories were the measure of possible reductions in her land forces and also, probably in the number of British cruisers, but he thought that reductions could be made by agreement in the size of the cruisers and in the number of submarines.

Yet he asserted that the British people were "passionately desirous" of securing a reduction of armaments—"one of the chief causes of high taxation which leads to unemployment."

Ban On Fortune Telling

Practice Will Be Prohibited in Vancouver in Future

Vancouver.—While palmistry, phrenology and astrology are recognized as sciences under the Canadian criminal code, and persons practicing them are eligible to receive civic licenses, fortune telling by tea-cup "readings" and cards are illegal, and will be banned in Vancouver hereafter, states Chas. Jones, city license inspector.

The practice of giving free readings of the future in Vancouver tea shops and beauty parlors has lately achieved great popularity, said Mr. Jones, and persons permitting it to continue will be liable to cancellation of their business licenses and to police action under the criminal code.

Gather Strawberry Crop

Seattle.—British Columbia Indians can enter Washington State to help harvest a $1,500,000 Puget Sound strawberry crop, under a United States department of labor ruling. The Indians are required to register on entering and to leave within a reasonable time. The berries are ripening two or three weeks ahead this year.

Here are a few examples of the class of settler that is being brought over by Canada by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Of the best British stock they have the part and a finer crop of children and young people could not be found anywhere in the world. Care them at this age and they are complete Canadians in a few years. Take first the Nicol family from Wichester, Scotland, who are settling at Edmont.

Awaiting Boat To South

Members of Amundsen Expedition Housed in Cabin at Nome

Nome.—Four Arctic explorers settled down to routine life in a cabin here and continued to exchange reminiscences of their experience in flying over the top of the world.

Awaiting the arrival of a steamer the party, headed by Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole and the third to reach the North Pole, are content to rest. There were indications of a lone stay at the next boat out of Nome will be on June 15.

The drizzle, fog, the huge gas bag in which the explorers made their way through clouds, fog banks and Arctic temperatures from Spitzbergen to Teller, 75 miles from here, is being carefully packed for shipment out of Alaska by steamer when the fogged harbor thaws out.

Captain Amundsen, Lincoln Ellsworth of New York, and Captain Oscar Wisting and Lieut. Oskar Omdahl, all members of the expedition, are occupying a cabin which they have christened the "Explorers' Club." Here they plan to hold forth until a steamer is sighted.

Oppose Suggestion For Canadian Standard

Management of Historical Association Would Keep Union Jack

Ottawa.—The management committee of the Canadian Historical Association, in its report presented at the annual meeting of the association here, expressed "its strong disapproval of any attempt to substitute another flag for the Union Jack as the Canadian standard."

A motion to this effect was passed last fall by the British Columbia Historical Association and copies of it were sent to all other provincial historical associations.

The report of the management committee states that "so far as replies have been received, the consensus of opinion appears to be in sympathy with that of the British Columbia Historical Association."

The report adds that it does not think it advisable to take any further action.

Carl U. S. "Shlyock of World"

Toronto.—Hated still existing between various European nations meant that there was danger of another war among the Europeans. Hon. James W. Gerard, former United States ambassador to Germany, declared in an address here. He also referred to the United States as "the Shlyock of the world" in connection with its attitude on war debt.

DECLARES STRIKE WAS DISASTROUS TO LABOR CAUSE

London.—Severe criticism of the general strike was voiced by Frank Hodges, secretary of the International Miners' Federation since 1925. In a press interview he characterized the strike as "a disaster motivated by blind passion to try out a machine which, though perfect on paper, took no account of simple human nature and economic facts."

He declared that the gigantic effort of the Trades Union Congress was a mere toy in the presence of the economic facts and social forces with which it was confronted.

Mr. Hodges maintains that the miners' present fight is "a fruitless and tragic struggle against inexorable economic facts," and that prudent leadership would dictate that the miners should not be permitted to go further and fare worse.

Ramsay MacDonald, the leader of the parliamentary Labor group, speaking in behalf of the Labor candidate at the Hammersmith by-election, strongly attacked the government for breaking off the negotiations which would have averted the general strike.

As to whether the general strike had been successful, Mr. MacDonald said: "Was the position of the government after the strike the same as before the strike? Of course it was not. If Premier Baldwin at the end of the week before the strike had done what we asked him again and again to do, there would have been no strike at all. And he did it within two days after the calling off of the strike."

Gold Deposits Found Near Arctic Circle

One Bodies Were Discovered By Electrical Prospecting Methods

Stockholm.—New gold deposits, classed as fourth in the entire world, have been discovered by electrical prospecting methods developed by Hans Lundberg and Carl Sundberg, mine engineers at Borlänge in the province of Vesterbotten, not far south of the Arctic Circle.

Altogether 24 ore bodies have been located in this region, all covered by glacial drift, swamps or lakes.

One deposit was reached through the ice at the bottom of a lake 39 feet down.

Besides gold these ore bodies have been found to contain copper, silver, arsenic, sulphur, and pyrites.

Germany Changes Loan Market

U. S. Has Been Superseded by Britain and Holland

Berlin.—The United States, which has long been about the only money lending market available to Germany, has been superseded by Britain and Holland, says a report by the Deutsche Gesellschaft, one of the large Berlin banks. The report shows that Germany, since January 1, raised loans aggregating 2,850,000,000 marks ($738,750,000), of which 1,900,000,000 marks were raised abroad and 670,000,000 at home.

Red Lake Railway Bill Defeated

Ottawa.—After a few minutes discussion the railway committee of the house rejected a bill for the construction of a railway line from Quilich, Ont., on the Canadian National about 100 miles north to the new gold mining district of Red Lake. The committee's decision came on the preamble of the bill which was defeated by 21 to 17 thus rejecting the bill itself.

Train Farmer Settlers

London.—The steamer Minnedosa, which sailed for Canada, May 21, carried 30 boys who are going to Vinny Ridge, Indiana, Pa., at Guelph, Ontario, to take up in agriculture. The boys are going out under the Ontario Government scheme for the training of young settlers.

French-German Air Accord

La Haye, Holland.—The first commercial aeroplane coming from Germany since the recent aviation accord reached between France and Germany has arrived here. The plane carried seven passengers.

"Picturesque America" Includes Picturesque Canada

1. Twin Falls, Yoho Glacier. 2. A Raft of Fun—Lake O'Hara.

Can you imagine a span of a thousand million years or so? If you can, try to picture to yourself the place where the Rocky Mountains now stand, with their snow-crowned peaks towering into the sky, at the bottommost depths of an inland sea.

Do you know how the Rockies were formed? By what Titanic forces these great masses were crumpled and folded and lifted high in the air?
It is a most interesting story that geology tells us concerning the formation of this gigantic range through the ages—across before the human race dyed upon the earth, and only one of the many other fascinating things that one learns about one's own land, in "Picturesque America," a de-luxe volume, superbly illustrated with 500 photographs and charmingly written, which has been published recently by "The Resorts and Playgrounds of America," New York.

It is a compliment, and not one undeserved, to Canada, that this book, which describes so clearly and well, the wonders and beauties of the parks and beauty spots of North America, should give over more than one-quarter of its space to Canada's great playground.
Yet it cannot but be recognized that her parks are unique in their magnificence of form and beauty of color, in their preservation of game and wild creatures, and in their possession of great virgin forests and vast regions as yet unexplored.

The National Parks of Canada are 14 in number and range in area from a few square miles to 4,000 square miles. For the most part they are found in the western part of the country; while the three most beautiful Rocky Mountain parks, Banff, Yoho and Glacier, lie along the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Many well-known writers, such as Robert Sterling Yard, Zane Grey, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Henry Van Dyke, Charles Lummis, Arthur Stringer, Mary Carolyn Davies, and J. B. Harkin have contributed to this volume, which maintains a high standard of literary quality throughout. Verses of nature by equally well-known poets are scattered throughout, and there is added a complete index and bibliography. Hence besides the charm of the book it is invaluable as one of reference. It would seem that its purpose—to make better known and thus better appreciated the scenic marvels of America's wildernesses, must be accomplished.

Here and There

Immigration to Canada in 1925 totaled 84,907, of which 35,362 was contributed by the British Isles, 17-117 by the United States, and 61-528 by other countries. In addition 39,849 Canadians who had established homes in the United States and resided there for a period longer than six months returned to live in their native land.

A new cash-on-delivery parcels system has been inaugurated at Post Offices all over Great Britain. Parcels up to the value of £40 (about $195) may now be posted at any post office to any address in Great Britain, the value being collected by the Post Office authorities and remitted to the sender. The system seems to be meeting with success.

Business conditions on the Pacific Coast continue on the upward trend with great activity in construction work. The lumber industry outlook is brighter and there have been important developments in new sawmill construction. The fishing industry is on a better footing, pulp and paper mills are active and additional power programmes are being worked out.

A. M. Johnson, President of the Canadian Club of Boston, visited Montreal for the first time on the new "Redwing" train now running between the two cities on Canadian Pacific lines. In telling of the charitable and naturalisation aid given Canadians by the Canadian Club of Boston, Mr. Johnson said there were some 900,000 Canadians in the State of Massachusetts. Of this number 80,000 are in Boston.

Sir Eime Howard, British Ambassador to the United States, stated on his arrival in Toronto on a C.P.R. train that the question of European peace was the most urgent and immediate problem of the day. It was necessary for Great Britain to assist in maintaining peace and the League of Nations offered a suitable vehicle.
Sir Eime claimed that if the League disappeared England would be compelled to join some European combination against the country which threatened to dominate the continent.

Net earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway for March were $2-524,177, an increase of $706,959 in the same period last year, and the best March net since 1918. For the three months ending March 31 net earnings were $6,531,067, an increase of $2,675,385 over the corresponding period of last year and the best showing for the three months since 1917. Gross earnings for March were up $1,330,271, while expenses increased only $623,306.

The development of tourist traffic to the Dominion has been one of the most noteworthy events of the Canadian economic situation in the postwar period. Holiday makers of the United States apparently find Canada's vacation charm irresistible as the number of visitors shows large increases every year. In 1925 5-429,144 United States automobiles entered Canada for touring purposes, as compared with 1,889,210 in 1924. A new record is expected this season.

Speaking at the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association meeting at Toronto recently, E. W. Batty, President of the C.P.R. said there is no class of worker more closely in touch with, or more soundly informed of, the problems of the Canadian industrial life than the railway and newspaper workers. Each was building up the country as he served the actual needs of the community.
Mr. Batty was impressed by the universal willingness of the Canadian press to get behind appeals that must be made to the public on behalf of works of charity, civic benefit and education.

CHAPTER V.—(Continued)

"Say, you!" she said, her lips set. "You're just about the same as a new run in us old pair of stockings to me, but you're running the wrong way. We're saying goodbye now, and we'll probably never say hello again, but I'd like you to remember that you were on the start of something today that's going to have a big finish."

He made no reply, but just looked at her, somewhat sorrowfully. She added, irrelevantly it seemed:

"And it didn't start the way you think and it won't finish the way you expect, take it from me!" Then, her flowers hugged close, she went into the house.

Mrs. Adams was a dear old soul or a mean old termagant, according to whether you owed your room rent or not. Not that she was so much different, under the latter circumstances, but the general aspects of her seemed different. As a matter of fact, she was good for four weeks of arrears for any girl and after that, why, as many more as a girl required if she was in real hard luck and actually trying to get out of it. Joanna herself, had once comforted a girl friend, who had mortgaged her room rent for two weeks ahead on a dress she couldn't afford with, "Never mind, dearie! The first week's the hardest. After that she'll pay for you, and I guess that won't do you any harm, either."

Mrs. Adams was breathless with curiosity when Joanna faced her in the draw room which paired in proper designation from the iron clad rule which the landlady laid down meticulously to each new lodger: "My young ladies receives their company of the other sex in the drawing room only!" Her young ladies consisted in reference to the big front room downstairs with the two spindle legged gold chairs and the three overstuffed things in faded red, as "the drawing room only." Joanna, speechless for a moment, showed her flowers into the landlady's arms. At the same time she noticed that the old lady had taken off her apron. She'd never seen Mrs. Adams, except on Sundays, with her apron off. It gave her something easy to talk about as a starter:

"I didn't know it was you getting out of the automobile," Mrs. Adams explained. "And I wasn't taking chances. That's my rule; when an automobile comes to my house off my apron. I was properly raised in my young days."

She allowed a ten or two to escape over the flowers, marvelling at the assembly of so many geraniums, also a beloved memory of girlhood, in one bunch. Then she was ready to be told about the car, and the absence from the store, and the reason for the gift of blossoms.

Joanna made her put the flowers in water, turn down the gas in the oven so that whatever was cooking there wouldn't burn, put her broom out of the hall so it wouldn't worry her, and sit down. Then she told her.

The girl began slowly, deliberately, with infinite detail, an account of the numerous conveyed through "Good Morning," and her reflections while she waited in Mr. Graydon's office. Then her words hurried; she became excited; she talked fast; she got up and stood in the middle of "the drawing room only" and talked with her arms as well as her lips. She was just about to arrive at the bank, in her recital, when Mrs. Adams, who had been listening patiently, interrupted:

"Tell me: Where'd you get that new coat, Joe? It's mink ain't it? And it's real mink, too, or I've lost my eye-sight!"

"Sure it's real!" Joanna assured her.

"It's the only real thing Cohen had in his shop—it's what he's done business on all women. Cost a thousand bucks and that's what I'm coming to. When I got to the bank—"

"Just keep the lid on the 'don't' want to take it," she said. "I know you couldn't think of accepting it, and it isn't coming to me, and I only owe you for two weeks—but I've got to give something to somebody, haven't I?"

She was going out the door when she stopped again, and turned around. Mrs. Adams still was looking at her dully. She struck a pose that she considered was particularly appropriate for the framing of a doorway, body leaning against one side of the door frame, hand stretched across to the other, and her chin turned across a shoulder into the room:

"There's one thing you can do, Mrs. Landady-mine," she said. "You can read in the news that I get ready to spread it, and you can keep your other flappers out of the 'drawing room only' for tonight, because my John's coming around on his regular date and when he gets here I'll need the whole darn room for a lot of heavy stuff."

Still Enjoying Life at 84

Thanks To That Wonderful Remedy

Mrs. F. H. Miller, 1843-11th Ave. East, Vancouver, B.C., writes:

"Five years ago my husband suffered terribly with severe attacks of palpitation of the heart and smothering spells, and two doctors stated that he could not possibly live six months."

A friend recommended Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, with the result that my husband is still enjoying life at the age of 84 years.

He has improved so wonderfully that he can now climb the stairs without having those awful pains in his heart."

"You say you had a thousand dollars to pay for that coat, Joe?" Mrs. Adams interrupted again.

"You say you had a thousand dollars to pay for that coat, Joe?" Mrs. Adams interrupted again.

"In five hundred dollar bills," Cohen's eyes almost exploded. And I've got more in my handbag, and one of them for you, but never mind the cost till I get out of the bank, will you?"

Carotally, with constant repetition, and with infinite detail, Joanna completed her story. When she had finished she was flushed, excited, crying again. She'd rubbed her lips with the back of her hand so much, in her nervousness, that the makeup was blotchy, and the tears had played havoc with her eye lashes. She sank down in a chair and flashed with a pose that she instantly recognized as a good one, and one she'd remember for some future occasion—arms stretched down beside her, palms turned out with fingers spread.

"Now that's my story for you to stick to and what do you know about it?"

Mrs. Adams didn't know what to know about it. When Joanna came to the million dollars the landlady patted her hair and tucked in a grey waist that hung down behind; but when the girl came to the end—she was silent, motionless, and she kept her hands folded in her lap.

Joanna went over and kissed her to the top of her head, lightly. She didn't respond to that, which Joanna understood. It was a lot of news that had been thrown at her.

"Now I'm going upstairs and try to cry," said Joanna, gathering her

"And if I can't cry I'm going to laugh. If I can't do that either I'll try standing on my head and see if I can figure things out that way."

She didn't notice a sad little shake of the head which the landlady sent her way.

She turned to the door, but stopped.

She opened her bag. She selected the crispness of the five hundred dollar notes, went over to the grey-haired Mrs. Adams, showed her the size of it, and then crumpled it in the old lady's toil worn fingers. Mrs. Adams, with wet, troubled eyes, looked into the girl's face, and said some-thing, but Joanna stopped her by putting a hand over her mouth.

"Just keep the lid on the 'don't' want to take it," she said. "I know you couldn't think of accepting it, and it isn't coming to me, and I only owe you for two weeks—but I've got to give something to somebody, haven't I?"

May Restore Ancient Legend

Facts That Would Almost Prove Moon Was Effect On Plants

The old belief, always scoffed at by scientists, which led some farmers, religiously, to plant their crops in certain phrases of the moon, may yet receive some support. Some time ago scientists began to discover that certain living organisms, notably some kinds of seaweed and some species of ocean dwelling worms, possessed a distinct lunar periodicity. They fruited or bred or came to the surface or did other quite definite things in exact correspondence with the phases of the moon. It seemed almost as though they had an almanac. Now there has come to light another fact that seems likely to explain this one. It has been found that the kind of light called polarized light is more effective in certain of the chemical processes of life than is ordinary light. Moonlight is partly polarized. It is composed in part of this same kind of light, which—scientists now find peculiar in its action on living matter. Possibly moonlight really does have a different effect on plants and animals than does sunlight decreased to the same intensity. This would explain the apparent moon knowledge of the sea worms and the sea weeds. It would restore another ancient legend of mankind to an honored place among the truths of observation.

Has Unique Privilege

One Englishman Can Keep Hat On in King's Presence

To Michael Constantine de Courcy, Baron Kingsale, belongs the unique privilege of being the only man in the United Kingdom who may, if he so elects, keep on his hat in the presence of the King of England. A hereditary prerogative granted to Sir John de Courcy in the reign of King John, for conquering Ulster, is the reason the peer enjoys this curious privilege. Historical records show the permission to have been exercised only five times, the last instance being in 1859, when John de Courcy, successor to Gerald, Lord Kingsale, stood with his head covered in the presence of Queen Victoria.

Little Helps For This Week

Verily I say unto you, whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein.—Mark x, 15.

Do like a child, and lean and rest Upon thy Father's arm;

Pour out thy troubles on His breast, And thou shalt know no harm.

Then shalt thou by His hand be brought, By ways which thou knowest not, Up through a well-fought fight, To heavenly peace and light.

—Paul Gerhardt.

O Father, who are in all perfect beyond the longing of Thy children—and we are all and altogether Thine—Thou wilt make us pure and loving and free. We shall stand fearless in Thy presence, because Thou art the Father. Oh! let the heart of a child be given to us, that we may arise from the grave of our dead selves, and die no more, but see face to face the God of the living.—George MacDonald.

Find Roman Ruins in Sussex Village

Archaeologist Assailed in Excavations By College Students

Students from Oxford and Cambridge, passed their spring vacation in assisting J. E. Wilton, the archaeologist, in his excavations near Pulborough in Sussex. It has now been definitely established that the site of the excavations saw some 2,000 years ago a road connecting the early Roman road of the street with the main road to London. Masses of archaic pottery have been brought to light, probably belonging to the first century A.D. and iron finger rings and funeral urns have also been discovered. A pre-Roman beehive, quern and a number of flint instruments have also been discovered.

Prisoner's Temporary Good Behavior Does Not Warrant Freedom

Any bad man is likely to be good while he is locked up in prison. That he behaves while locked up is no reason why he should be pardoned or paroled. It needs something more than temporary good behavior to warrant the freedom of a man who has been captured by order of a judge and jury. There is some explaining to be done.—Los Angeles Times.

THOUSANDS OF THANKFUL MOTHERS

Strongly Recommend Baby's Own Tablets to Their Friends

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she would use nothing else. The Tablets give such results that the mother has nothing but words of praise for them. Among the thousands of mothers throughout Canada who praise the Tablets is Mrs. David A. Anderson, New Glasgow, N.S., who writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my children, and from my experience I would not be without them. I would urge every other mother of young children to keep a box of the Tablets in the house."

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach; drive out constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and make teething easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Among the good that die young in this 'hard-balled' age is good manners.

It is estimated that over 3,000,000 bicycles are used in Japan.

The Perfect Tax

Theoretically, the perfect tax would be a tax on inaction.

The proper man to tax would be the loafer, not the worker; the idle land, not the used land; inactive capital, not active capital; lack of enterprise, not enterprise. Such a tax would not be practical, but it would be a just tax.

Our present taxes are based on an opposite theory. We tax thrift, action, capital, enterprise.

We levy taxes in proportion to ability to pay, which means that the harder a man works, the more we tax him; the more thrifty he becomes, the more we seek him; the more efficient he grows, the more we shake him down.

If I save my money and buy a home, I am taxed; if I waste my money in extravagant living, I am not taxed.

None of our taxes is designed to encourage production by the simple process of discouraging idleness, shiftlessness, inefficiency.

The devil himself could not do a nastier job of hobbling the human race.—Hewitt, in the Municipal World.

EUCCHARISTIC CONGRESS, CHICAGO, JUNE, 1926

The Greatest Event in the History of the Catholic Church in America.

G.N. Ry. to Operate Special Trains from Western Canada.

Of unusual importance to Roman Catholics is the 28th International Eucharistic Congress in Chicago, the June 26 to June 28th next.

The Church directors are daily appreciative of the efforts made by the Canadian National Railways, who have arranged to operate special trains to and from the Congress, and have also made reservations for several hundred people in gold hotels on a reasonable expense, and ask their people to make application promptly for the necessary sleeping car and hotel accommodation. The Church authorities were consulted prior to arranging the train service so that the proper departure time from the various centers would be ensured.

Those who desire to use the regular service have the privilege of travelling on the through train, which is operated during the summer season from Western Canada to Chicago.

Any agent of the Canadian National Railways will be pleased to give you further particulars and complete all arrangements.

Fifth Annual Tour to the Pacific Coast.

Special Train Leaving Winnipeg, July 5, via Canadian National Railways, returning July 12. Provided at Various Points of Interest en Route.

Personally Conducted.

Following the close of school for the summer holidays, the Canadian National Railways will again operate the popular, personally conducted, tour to the Pacific coast. This will be the fifth of such tours.

This mode of travel has many advantages. In the first place it is planned with a view to including in the itinerary the most interesting points, which, with the other arrangements that are made, obviates the necessity of the passenger worrying about connections, sleeping car accommodations, meals and entertainment en route. This is all done in advance by experts leaving the passenger free to enjoy to the full the scenery and attractions attendant to such tours.

The tour this year will commence at Winnipeg, from which point a special train of modern sleeping car, equipment, dining car, and radio observation car will leave July 5. After stopping at various points of interest, the train will arrive at Victoria, B.C., on July 10th. At this latter point the party will embark on a palatial steamship for a cruise of 550 miles through the famous "Inside Passage" to Vancouver. While the tour terminates at Vancouver, those who desire to make a trip to Victoria may have their tickets read "Victoria," as their destination without any additional cost.

The local agent of the Canadian National Railways will be pleased to give you full particulars of this tour.
